

CQ News

Friday, 20 May 2016

» SUPPORTING BUSINESS: LTTS occupational therapist Prue Back, owner and HR manager Catherine McIntyre and director and senior occupational therapist Glen McIntyre.

PHOTO: CONTRIBUTED

Boot camp to boost business

Amber Hooker

amber.hooker@capnews.com.au

THEY are the backbone of our local communities, and small businesses will be celebrated statewide during Small Business Week from May 16-21.

Prominent Blackwater businesses Lifestyle Therapies and Training Solutions (LTTS) and Bentley's Finance will offer business insight for the year ahead during a free Business Boot Camp.

LTTS senior occupational therapist Glen McIntyre said Small Business Week was an important time for business leaders to focus on the coming year.

"It gives an opportunity to review priorities, as well as set up strategic plans to ensure sustainability and ongoing service delivery to customers for the remainder of 2016," he said.

Alongside LTTS owner and HR manager Catherine McIntyre, Glen will touch on how "the leader of any business or department is in essence both the limiting factor and the multiplication factor for their team".

"How that leader manages their own mindset and personal wellbeing will have a direct correlation on both the outcomes and the efficiency of the business," Glen said.

He said the presentation would be just one element among many during the Boot Camp at Blackwater Civic Centre on Friday, May 20 from 8-11am.

Topics include human resources, lending and banking matters, cloud accounting, tax planning

Small Business Week

Business Boot Camp

» Blackwater Civic Centre
» Friday, May 20 from 8-11am

» Free, RSVP by Thursday, May 19 at chdc.com.au
Small Business Week Breakfast, hosted by CQ News

» CHRC forecourt, Egerton St

» Free from 1-8.30am

» Sausage sizzle, meet and greet, community champions presentation and wellness mindset.

"The key purpose is to provide all-round information on key areas of business management," Glen said.

Other speakers include Bentley's Finance HR officer Heidi Mayhew-Sanders, director Hamish McIntosh and manager Ryan Rostron.